

Danielle Jollette

Graphic Designer

Danielle is a Graphic Designer and works with the marketing department and all three regions of Westervelt Ecological Services (WES). Danielle is responsible for creating materials that highlight the company's unique restoration projects. She also helps manage the WES website, social media, and other marketing projects as needed.

Before officially joining WES, Danielle worked with WES as a contractor for over two years, performing many of her current responsibilities. She has a graduate certificate in science illustration from California State University Monterey Bay and a bachelor's in environmental studies from San Francisco State University. Danielle was a GeoCorps America intern through the Geological Society of America with the Oregon Trail Interpretive Center in Baker City, OR. She has worked as an education intern with the Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy, teaching youth environmental education programs and developing curriculum and print materials.
